EweCan Enhance Health

Since the inception of the high health flock we have done our utmost at keeping the flock in such a manner. All sheep ever purchased to date, came from Medicine Ridge Farm; whose initial sheep all came from the animal research centre in Ottawa Canada. Our sheep flock is completely closed. No animal ever returns to any of our premises once it leaves the farm. Strict biosecurity protocols are practiced when animals are loaded into customer's trailers. All visitors report to the farm office and wear disposable coveralls and footwear before entering the sheep barns. High health through biosecurity has been and remains an important factor in being able to attain ultimate flock results and inadvertently allows for the confidence in selling healthy animals to our customers.

The right biosecurity and correct flock management is the key to ENHANCING health

"Successful lamb production in the current agricultural economy depends on a solid foundation of high health, high performance genetics, and the ability to monitor and manage the flock to optimize this potential"

- Ian Clark M.R.A.

EweCan Maximize Production

Our model has always been to further the symbiotic balance of Rideau Arcott Prolificacy with increased profitability. We have always strived for the correct relationship of lamb numbers born and lambs marketed. Selecting genetics for ideal birth, weaning and finishing weights is paramount. As well as selecting the rearing ability and overall lamb growth relative to the ewe's frame, milking and mothering abilities. These have been and remain a true resonating and underlining success in our flock.

The right breeding and genetics is the catalyst in MAXIMIZING production

"As repeated customers of EweCan Genetics, we were very pleased with the quality and performance of all our Rams. We achieved high weaning/shipping percentage due to these quality genetics combined with proper feeds."

- Ben and Kathy Throop - Ewe Can Genetics for the Intensive Producer

> In the sheep industry there are two things you need, to have the best chance of success; genetics and herd health. Kaiser's have made it possible for many producers over the years. I was able to use their genetics for my foundation to build my flock as a closed herd. Kaiser's have ticked all the boxes on all levels both finished lambs with the grading system and in the lambing jugs.

> Infectious disease matters more in raising sheep than it does in other species such as cattle. Diseases such as infectious abortion, parasites and foot rot can make the difference between a profitable operation and one that operates at a loss. The most important way to avoid these infectious diseases is to know where your replacements come from and their health status. The reality is that most flocks that are dealing with infectious disease problems paid good money and bought the disease. Sheep producers have to take biosecurity seriously if they want to be successful and the most important part of biosecurity is sourcing healthy replacements from a flock where you know the health status.

Raising the standards to achieve profitability

EweCan Unleash Performance

We have been selecting sheep performance and profitability for over 20 years. With the large flock factor we have been able to achieve significant genetic advancements as we have the capabilities of selecting only the top performing animals in their respective breeds and breed categories. The results orientated selection philosophy we have adopted, has equated to higher standards in flock accomplishment and economics.

- The results managed large flock factor is the secret in UNLEASHING performance

> "We purchased 300 ewe lambs from the Kaiser's, they were very uniform and have been very prolific for us. The lamb crop averaged out at 253%. We are very happy to be the owners of these well-bred sheep. EweCan Genetics put a lot of thought and time into their sire selection."

The Kaiser Story

Let me take you back to 1998...Martin and Helena Kaiser acquired a first-rate nucleus of 20 pure bred, high health, high indexing ovine from Medicine Ridge Farms. A small yet imperative step in the investment of a select few genetics with dedicated management has grown to literally thousands of sold replacement lambs, meat lambs and a base flock growth of over 5,000 sheep. The humble beginnings and eventual growth and success of the farm today is attributed to only a couple factors; the Lords blessings, an outstanding start in the initial nucleus flock and family working together.
